

Moderation and presentation

- What is moderation?
- The moderator
- Tools
- Presentation
- How to prepare for a moderation
- The structure of a moderation
- Questions – A moderator's bread and butter
- Problem-solving strategies
- What is a presentation?
- How to prepare for a presentation
- How to organize a presentation
- Giving a presentation
- Dealing with interruptions and complications
- Day clearing

“Moderation” is known as the effort of one or several persons to enable and to facilitate the opinion-forming process of groups without steering or influencing it.

General tips

- Plan the structure and the method of your moderation well in advance.
- Share your intent and approaches with the group, and let them give their agreement.
- Pass questions concerning the content on to the entire group.
- Avoid comments regarding the content and evaluations of participants' contributions.
- Assume a neutral stance.
- Make an effort to incorporate all participants into the moderation process equally.
- Moderate in pairs of two, if possible.

- Structure, symmetry, and interior logic
- Sensible use of shapes and colors
- Good readability and sophisticated illustration

1. General overview
2. Overview of the subject matter
3. Information concerning the participants
4. Rough goal
5. Methodical concept
6. Preparation of materials
7. Organization
8. Physical and mental fitness

HERSHEY

- Number?
According to the moderation cycle
- What?
What counts?
- How?
Which method?
- Who?
Which moderator?
- Time?
How long?
- Tools?
Which tools, aids, and materials?

What?

How?

Who?

Time?

LESERPROJEKT

